MAINE FOREST FIRE

Great devastation was caused during the second week in August by a fire in the woods bordering on the Rangeley Lakes, Maine. It burned over an area four miles long and three miles wide. Seven hundred men and women fought the fire for two weeks. Fire apparatus was brought from Portland, but only the fortunate coming of rain extinguished the flames. It was thought that the fire was incendiary, caused by jobless lumbermen in order to secure the $3 per day that the State pays to fire-fighters.

"MASTER MOVE" IN CHECKERS

An interesting situation evolved by "Gentleman" Jack O'Brien, the famous boxer, who is also a checker enthusiast. White has three kings and four common pieces. Black has four common pieces. It is black's move. He sacrifices No. 1, which is captured by 2. Then he sacrifices 3 and 5, both being taken by 4. Then he moves No. 6, his only remaining piece and wins.

ENDLESS CAVERNS

A wonderful series of caverns has recently been discovered at Newmarket, Va., that have been called "endless" because no termination to their passageways has been reached. It is a marvelous maze of narrow corridors, spacious rooms, miniature mountains and hidden waterfalls. Some of the beautiful stalactites and stalagmites are here pictured.

American Delegates To Limitation of Armaments Conference

PRESIDENT HARDING'S announcement of the American delegates to the Limitation of Armaments Conference, which will meet in Washington Nov. 11, has met with general approval. It is recognized that four abler or more experienced men could not have been chosen. It is especially gratifying that the President has ignored party lines and has chosen a Democrat as one of the members. The head of the delegation is Secretary of State Hughes. His public experience has been extensive. Apart from his present office, he has served as a Justice of the Supreme Court and for two terms as Governor of New York. In 1916 he was the Republican nominee for the Presidency. Senator Lodge of Massachusetts is the Republican floor leader of the Senate and Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee. No man exerts more influence than he in that body. Elihu Root has had a brilliant career, having held the high posts of Secretary of State, Secretary of War and United States Senator from New York. He is a lawyer and jurist of international reputation, and has lately had the distinguished honor of being the nominee of six nations for membership in the World Court of Justice. He is the oldest of the delegates, having reached 76 years. Mr. Underwood is the senior Senator from Alabama, and is the leader of the Democratic Party in the Senate, as he formerly was in the House of Representatives. He was the sponsor for the tariff bill that bears his name. The other countries that take part in the conference will be represented by their ablest men, and it is gratifying to Americans to know that their delegation in brains and statesmanship yields precedence to none.

"MR. ZERO" ADDRESSING JOBLESS
Urbain Ledoux, who recently attracted nationwide attention by "auctioning off" workless men in Boston, is here shown addressing jobless men in Cooper Square, New York, Sept. 20. He had an exciting day, his efforts being thwarted by the police, who were afraid that a riot would be started.

TRIO OF STAGE
CELEBRITIES

In this interesting group, pictured at the screen stars' California home, are shown Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks and Daniel Frohman, the eminent theatrical producer. Miss Pickford is in the costume of Little Lord Fauntleroy, her latest screen vehicle, and Mr. Fairbanks is in the garb of d'Artagnan, his latest rôle. The presence of Mr. Frohman reminds one that he had managed both stars in spoken stage productions in earlier years. Miss Pickford appeared in "A Good Little Devil," which name was later given to her first film production. Mr. Fairbanks's last spoken stage appearance was in "Hawthorne of the U. S. A."

Striking Incidents and Important Fig- ures in Conference Over the Momen- tous Irish Question

THE settlement of the Irish question has been deferred by a controversy between the British Premier, Lloyd George, and the Irish leader, Mr. de Valera, as to the status of the Irish delegates who are to be sent to the conference. Mr. de Valera has insisted that they should be recognized as delegates from a sovereign and independent nation. Lloyd George has firmly refused any such status, and has pointed out that if the Irish contention were allowed Ireland would have the right as a sovereign power to negotiate treaties with other countries that might be wholly inimical to the safety and interests of Great Britain. The Premier would not consent even to an informal abandonment of the principle of allegiance to the British Crown. He was ready to meet de Valera as the chosen spokesman for Southern Ireland. Mr. de Valera in reply stated that the conference, if held, must be without prejudice on either side, and asked the Premier if his message was a "demand for surrender."

The controversy seems to be largely a matter of terminology and a "jockeying for position." It has been made clear that on the point of allegiance the Premier is immovable. Except on this basis, the conference cannot take place. The English press back him up almost unanimously, and papers like The Westminster Gazette and The Manchester Guardian, that have been friendly to the Irish cause, advise de Valera not to forego the undeniable advantages he has already gained by too stubborn an attitude. How the matter will be finally arranged is problematical, but a spirit of optimism prevails on both sides, and it is almost unthinkable that the conference on which so much depends will not be held.

THE uncertain quantity thus far in the preliminary arrangements for the Limitation of Armaments Conference has been the attitude of Japan. She was the last of the great powers to accept the invitation, and even when the acceptance came it was hedged about with modifications. This matter is understood to have been adjusted by the United States and Japanese Governments in a manner satisfactory to the latter, and her delegation to the conference has been tentatively chosen. The portraits of the leading delegates are shown on this page. They represent the naval, military and political elements of Japan, and are men of high character and ability. It is gratifying to be told semi-officially that the question of Yap has been practically agreed upon by Secretary Hughes and Ambassador Shidehara. The terms, though not yet officially stated, are understood to be that the United States gets the Guam-Yap cable and the right to establish a wireless station free from Japanese censorship and control. The matter of the Japanese mandate over Yap is still held in abeyance.

Remarkable Artistic
Work of Invalid Boy

Your feet were like this

THE baby girl is born with perfect feet and hands.

She grows to womanhood. Her hands are still perfect.

Her feet? Men who are in a position to know estimate that from 65% to 85% of the women today have not only very imperfect feet, but the majority have some form of foot trouble.

Why do the feet lose their perfection when the baby grows to womanhood—and needs good feet more than ever?

Shoes. There can be no other answer. It is true the human foot carries a load and is taxed daily. But Nature, in her infinite wisdom, designed the human foot to carry its load, to do its full duty in the life of every woman. Nature must have been thwarted and abused and restrained by the artificial foot-wear made by man.

THE nearest approach to nature, while retaining every desirable feature of style, is found in the Cantilever Shoe. It is shaped to the natural shape of the foot. The arch is flexible, like the human foot—not rigid as in ordinary shoes.

The flexibility of the Cantilever shank permits the foot muscles to have free action. This freedom makes a free, graceful step in walking. Exercise strengthens the arch muscles and all through life they never fail to hold in place the small bones forming the foot arch.

CANTILEVER heels are graceful and sensible. They promote good posture, which conduces to good health.

The wonderful Cantilever arch hugs the instep, when the shoe is laced, and affords a gentle, restful support to the foot without unnatural restraint.

Circulation is free. The foot is unrestrained in Cantilever Shoes—free! You can walk with more pleasure and less fatigue. You stand with greater patience. A new ease in shoes delights you—makes those marvelous feet of yours strong, healthy, beautiful,—and comfortable!

If no dealer listed at the right is near you, the manufacturers, Morse & Burt Co., 11 Carlton Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., will mail you the Cantilever Shoe Booklet and the address of a nearby dealer.
